What Happened?

The Apple company recently showcased their new product called the iPhone X. There is also a new thing called a Face ID. It is a new password. It functions by capturing a person's face who uses the phone, then it makes a 3D map of them. According to Apple, they think it is safer and easier to use than just a passcode.

I chose this story because...

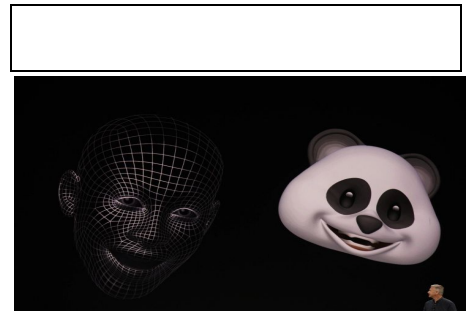

This iPhone X is a huge deal. It is trending everywhere now. It is also important because this product is very unique than the others. It has more features, lots of detail, and here's a solution to this problem that happens. The iPhone X will not make that much finger smudges on the screens and the back of it. Isn't that very cool? We all hope this can release and sell out in the markets. We might also be looking forward to the new features like features like face emoticons!

Why is it Important?

It is important because everyone is getting excited for Apple's new product. Also, this is the latest story that it going around since Apple has showcased it to others. We might also have our favorite category of phones being waterproof, and other features may be included! We don't know much about this new product and it might be a long wait for it to release, but it will definitely be worth waiting that long while.

Face Emoticons Being Introduced
